

Name: Rathachai Kaewlai, M.D.

Current Affiliation: Department of Radiology, Faculty of Medicine Siriraj Hospital, Bangkok, Thailand

Position: Radiologist

Training: American Board of Radiology with certificates of clinical fellowship training in Emergency Radiology, Thoracic and Body Imaging.

Research portfolio: <http://tinyurl.com/hrl6j5s> and <http://tinyurl.com/zwmh9l4>

Dr. Rathachai Kaewlai is board-certified by the American Board of Radiology and Thai Board of Radiology. He graduated from Mahidol University in Bangkok Thailand (MD: Siriraj Hospital, Thai General Radiology Board: Ramathibodi Hospital) and received clinical fellowship training at Massachusetts General Hospital (MGH) and Harvard Medical School in Boston, Massachusetts, and Northeastern Ohio Universities College of medicine, Ohio. His clinical fellowships included Emergency Radiology, Thoracic and Body Imaging. Dr. Rathachai Kaewlai is currently a radiologist of the Department of Radiology, Faculty of Medicine Siriraj Hospital, Mahidol University in Bangkok, Thailand.

Dr. Rathachai Kaewlai is an active researcher with more than 40 articles published in international peer-reviewed journals such as Radiology, American Journal of Roentgenology, International Journal of Clinical Practice, RadioGraphics and Emergency Radiology. His research focuses on imaging of acute conditions, esp. emergency ultrasound/CT, and quality in radiology.

As an academic radiologist, Dr. Rathachai Kaewlai is a guest speaker in many national and international radiology and emergency medicine meetings - notably the Asian Oceanian Congress of Radiology and the Asian Congress of Emergency Medicine. Dr. Rathachai Kaewlai is also a curator of a website, radprompt.com, dedicated to radiology education and its social media affiliates (Facebook page, Instagram, etc).